Respect for Differences

A stereotype is a mental image or opinion formed in advance about a particular group of people. It's putting labels on people, forgetting that everyone is different. For example, the statements “Women do not drive well”, or “Men are tough”, are stereotypes.

Each of the statements below is a stereotype. Choose one to write about, describing why you think it is unfair.

- Men who like pink are effeminate.
- All teenagers are rebels.
- All brainy people are bad at sports.
